THE PHILOSOPHER AND HIS DAUGHTER.

A sound came booming through the air,
"What is that sound?" quoth I,
My blue-eyed pet, with golden hair,
Made answer presently—
"Papa, you know it very well—
That sound—it was Saint Patrick's Bell!"

"My own Louise, put down the eat,
And come and stand by me,
I'm sad to hear you talk like that;
Where is your philosophy?
That sound—attend to what I tell—
That sound was not Saint Patrick's Bell."

"Sound is the name the sage selects
For the confounding term,
Of a long series of effects,
Of which that blows the germ.
The following brief analysis
Shows the interpolations, Miss."

"The blow which, when the clapper slips,
Falls on your friend the Bell;
Changes its elastic to a stiff;
(A word you'd better spell)
And then comes elasticity,
Restoring what it used to be."

"Nay, making it a little more,
The circle shifts about;
As much as it is struck in before,
The Bell, you see, shifts out;
And so a new ellipse is made
(You're not attending, I'm afraid!).

"This change of form disturbs the air,
Which in its turn behaves
In like elastic fashion there,
Creating waves on waves,
Which press each other onward, dear,
Until the outmost finds your ear."

"Within that ear the surgeons find
A tympanum, or drum,
Which has a little bone behind—
Malleus, it is called by some;
Those not proud of Latin grammar
Humblily translate it as the hammer."

"The wave's vibrations thus transmit
Onward to the inner bone
(Ineas means anvil), which it hits,
And thus transmits the tone
To the small os orbicular,
The tiniest bone that people carry."

"The stapes next—the name recalls
A strapping form my daughter—
Joins three half-circular canals,
Each filled with limpid water;
Their curious lining you'll observe,
Made of the auditory nerve."

"This vibrator next—and thus we find
The mystic wave is crown'd;
For then my daughter's gentle mind
First recognizes sound—
See what a host of causes swell
To make up what you call the 'Bell!'"

Awhile she pined, my bright Louise,
And ponder'd on the case;
Then, settling that he meant to tease,
She slipped her father's ear-love;
"You had of me to sit and tell
Such gibberish about a bell!"

IMMIGRATION—LETTER FROM COMMODORE MAURY.

Everything from the pen of Commodore Maury, from his famous letters to the old Southern Literary Messenger, nearly thirty years ago, down in the order of time, but, of course, up in the order of merit, to his "Physical Geography of the Sea," and his latest letter on public affairs, is read with avidity by people of all parties and both sections. The following letter on immigration, though brief, is full of wholesome advice and suggestions on that subject, and has about it the genuine ring of the favorite, old Matt. Maury metal.

OFFICE OF PHYSICAL SURVEY, V. M. T.,
LEXINGTON, VA., May 27, 1871.

To J. M. H. Esq., Memphis, Tenn:

DEAR SIR: Your letter of 23d inst. came to hand this morning.

I am rejoiced to learn that your people have at last waked up to the importance of immigration, and that they have become so alive to it as to call meetings to take counsel together. That is right. It is a big subject, too large for any one man, city or country to grapple with single-handed. It requires concert and joint co-operation, zealous action, and such as convince lookers on that strong hands, stout hearts and clever heads are at the work, and that you mean business.

The people of the South may rely upon it that there is no recuperation of material prosperity for them and theirs in one day and generation short of a good strong tide of immigration. That will insure it, and nothing else; for nothing that I can see, short of a liberal introduction of fresh labor and foreign capital, is going to give our lands anything like a fair and marketable value.

As a rule, the property of the South is in real estate; and their lands are what the people of Tennessee want? Nay, what is the State without a pocketable value to the lands of the State worth? It is the chief source of her revenue; and if she permit her lands to go down to half their value, and to be unsaleable at that, how can she expect her people to pay their taxes, or her financiers to preserve her credit?

According to the census of 1850, and I quote from that because the returns of '70 have not yet been made up, according to that census, the cash value in gold of the lands, live stock and farming implements in Tennessee, was, in round numbers, two hundred and eighty millions of dollars. What is their greenback value now, paper down? Three-fourths? Not much more, I fancy—no, but one-half of it, I fear. Are not lands in Tennessee almost unsaleable? Why? Simply because your own people own more than they can till, and there are no new-comers. It has been ten years since stock was last taken among you, and to be lower in pocket now than they were then would, according to my way of thinking, show you to be in the condition which "old salts" describe as "hard-up and astern of the lighter."

They say in the North that every man who comes from abroad and settles in their section increases its worth $1,000. This, independent of the ready money he fetches and the power he adds to the State by increase of population. According to its estimates, 10,000 abled-bodied emigrants coming from Europe and establishing themselves in Tennessee, would increase the wealth of that State, by their presence and their labor alone, some $10,000,000. Such an influx of wealth and population would help considerably.

What are you now disposed now to do to get it? What agencies are you prepared to set to work? What influence to bring into play during the next year or two, that at the end of that time you may see, not only ten thousand coming in a single year, but thousands upon thousands following from years since and until your State is full.

What are you and your people prepared to do to put this ball in motion? That's the question? Your conventions may pass resolutions about your fine climates and rich soils, setting forth that Tennessee is a goodly land, in need of capital and labor, and that if these will come, they will be kindly received and well treated. Why, everybody at home knows that. The emigrant abroad will never hear it, and so you won't get more settlers to come that way.

But if you will go to work with a will, remembering that, "where there's a will there's a way," why the field is before you, the way is clear, and it's all your own.

While you are preparing for State aid, and organizing for county co-operation, and paying the way for your new-comers, advertise yourselves, and state abroad in a manner that the emigrating classes there may, before they "pull up stakes," know something about the country. Make immigrants acquainted with its soil and its climate, its productions and its resources. Let them have maps and documents to make them acquainted with the natural position of your State, with its physical geography in all its aspects, including its social conditions and industrial resources, and my word for it you will ere long turn to gladness much present sorrow.

I could tell you now, if I had the time, and your patience to hear it, how that your in South America, the people, after having spent a generation in wishing for immigrants (as the South has been doing since the war, and with just the same degree of success, have at last, they and their Government, determined to act. They chartered ships in Europe, paid the passage of immigrants, and when they arrived gave them land. In a short time the stream was flowing, the expense was over, the thing was established, self-supporting, and immensely profitable. The other day, when the Franco-Prussian war broke out, a fleet of ships—one a day, I think, the year round—was plying between Europe and Buenos Ayres, loaded with immigrants, silk, and merchandise, one way, and freighted with produce the other.

The latitude of the La Plata country in the South corresponds to that of Tennessee in the North; its distance from Europe twice as great, the drawbacks greater, and yet the people there have in the course of a few years turned a stream which is pouring into their borders annually forty or fifty thousand new-comers, with their capital, their skill and their labor, and built a flourishing direct trade, a boon the South has been coveting in vain, ever since I can remember. Suffice it to say, with regard to this South America direct trade and immigration, all subsidies have ceased long ago. The States have grown rich and powerful, and the people prospering, while the Government has gained standing, and is in high credit in all the stock exchanges in Europe.

Tell how much cloth you have, and I'll tell you how to cut your suit. In other words, I know how far your State and your people are disposed to go into this matter, I might be able to be of service in the way of suggestions as to the best plan for getting the immigrants and building up direct trade.

I have promised to prepare an article for that excellent agricultural paper of yours, the Practical Southern Planter, and as soon as I am at leisure, I propose to send Capt. Gift a letter, addressed to the farmers of Tennessee, upon the subject of immigration. Perhaps he will do me the favor to find space for it in his valuable journal, which I am sure must be largely read throughout the State.

Respectfully, etc.,
M. F. MAURY.

THE TRI-WEEKLY YEOMAN.

The Chiselhurst Exiles.

(From the London Court Journal.)

The Emperor Napoleon's life at Chiselhurst is thus described by one who has the privilege of becoming acquainted with the social doings there: "During the forenoon all is silent in the mansion. The Emperor, after prayers, breakfasts, and a visit to the garden, is taken alone in the park for a short time, the rule of resuming his studies in the morning being broken through during the indisposition of the Emperor, to whom the society of his son is the chief solace of his exile. The Prince remains with his father during the whole process of the toilet, then assists at his late breakfast, which, contrary to the custom of the Tuileries, is taken alone. During this time the conversation between father and son is maintained with interest and affection. The boy has cheered and soothed the bodily pain and mental agony of the Emperor, who sometimes seems to smile at the former's recollections of England and the English, and offers judgment according to his lights concerning the French boys as compared with those of England. When the Emperor leaves his own apartment, the Prince Imperial repairs to his studies. But His Majesty declares that already the gloom of the day is over, although he feels the necessity of the separation for a while. The morning's report of the state of Paris is all unclouded. The Emperor is never on his feet. Even the Emperor herself never dares to venture an opinion on the subject. She has her own reputation, and is always prepared for the event before it happens. What has struck the friends of the Imperial family most of all is the comparative solitude in which each of its members seeks to live. There is no touching in the salons, which are taken by the Emperor up and down the avenue leaning on his cane, and stopping every now and then to remove the pebbles from his path, according to the habit of all men engaged in deep thought. His Majesty has grown much fatter since his arrival at Chiselhurst. But he walks with far more ease than on his last arrival in England, and now only requires the arm of a friend to help him up the steps of the hall door of the mansion."

A charming anecdote, worthy of the ancient days of chivalry, is being whispered about among the higher circles in London. It seems that one of our young Catholic heroes of high life, always a great admirer of the Empress Eugenie, had a visit to Chiselhurst, last week, to see his father-in-law, the Emperor. "What can I bring your Majesty from Babylon?" was the name by which the famous city is always designated now by the Imperial party. "I have brought you a rose from the garden of the Tuileries," the young man promised to execute this apparently easy commission, and departed in sadness. On Friday he reappeared at Chiselhurst with a case of purple morocco in his hand, which he reverently presented on bended knee to the Empress. It was the Golden Rose, given by the Pope to the Empress, that he had brought from the Tuileries. How he had obtained it, or through what long course of adventure he had traveled it to the party willing to part with it, will never be known nor yet at what sacrifice it was obtained. But great was the joy of the illustrious lady on beholding it, and pardonable the feeling which induced her to kiss it. It was a blessing at last to her house and she stayed the wrath of heaven. It had always formed a part of the altar decorations of the chapel at the Tuileries.

A Wonder in Sweet Omen.

About the latter part of the sixteenth century terrible excitement was caused in Germany by a report that a golden tooth had appeared in the jaw of a child born in Silesia. On investigation, the rumor turned out to be true. The miracle was soon known all over Germany notwithstanding its concealment was attempted. Being regarded as a mysterious omen, great excitement and universal anxiety was felt as to what this might mean. Its real import was untold by Dr. Host, who published the result of his researches, by which it appears that, at the birth of the child, the Sun was in conjunction with Saturn, at the sign Aries. Alarm therefore subsided. The golden tooth was the precursor of a golden age in which the Emperor Charles, driven from France, from Christendom and by the foundation of an empire that would last for thousands of years. And now, just as the world is becoming quiet again, after a long war, a child born with its mouth full of teeth turns up in Texas country. True, this last rumor has no other authentication than that a "reliable gentleman" gives it, while the story of the golden tooth is substantiated by several historians. But this last miracle may be as much a fact as the other, and far more portentous. Whether a war of nations, politics, or of races is brewing, we must wait and see. After all, this new wonder may turn out nothing but a "bit."

Romantic Result of a Star.

A beautiful and wealthy young lady, at a social party, took offense at what she supposed to be the impertinent gaze of a gentleman present, who was stranger to her, but a friend of the lady of the house. The young lady demanded his explanation as a condition of her remaining. Explanations ensued. The gentleman was not looking at her, "though beautiful enough to attract and fasten the attention of any one." He was looking at a line and costly chain that encircled the fair one's neck—just such a one as he had purchased for his sister-in-law, one of the links of which (having a secret opening) he had put his photograph. But, some months since, and before he had an opportunity to present it to his sister, it was stolen from him. Upon examining the lady's chain he found a spring to the little beauty unknown, and lo, and behold! there was his photograph.

I leave you to judge of the confusion of the fair one. She immediately offered to return the piece of jewelry, which was politely declined, for the time, and it is said by knowing ones that she has concluded to accept of the young man's hand and heart, in order that he might be the possessor of the one she had been permitted to retain the night. It is but justice to remark that the young lady bought the chain of a traveling peddler, who had stopped at her father's house for about one-half of its original value.

THE SEVENTEEN YEAR LOUPE.—The Albany Argus throws some light on the invasion of the West by the "seventeen year loupe," which the Chicago Tribune so much derides. It appears that the "loupe" is no loupe at all, but is the ecuda septemdecim; nor yet is it harmful, for it cannot devour vegetation as it has no jaws for eating, but merely a haw-tellum for sucking, which, however, it seldom or never uses. Its life lasts only from ten days to three weeks, and during this time it does nothing but fly about, then it deposits its eggs, and dies. The only injury done by these insects is noticed when they hurt trees by piercing them in order to deposit their eggs. They appear every year in some parts of the country, but not in the same locality, as the eggs are not hatched until they have lain for seventeen years.

A correspondent of the Scientific American says that free bathing of the affected parts in spirits of nitre is the best remedy for ivy-poisoning. He says that he has proved this remedy, and from ten years' experience is satisfied with its efficacy, having often previous to this discovery been rendered helpless and blind by ivy-poison. If the blisters break, so as to allow the air to reach the entire surface, a single application is necessary, and even where it is only applied to the surface of the skin three or four times during the day, there is rarely a trace of the poison left the next morning.
